Dear Mr. Jordan:

Re: MUR 5853

As you requested, I have attached my responses to the very time-consuming complaint filed by Congresswoman Mary Bono regarding demanding the Federal Election Commission shut down a blogsite called Mary Bono #2 Congressional Hottie where the maximum hits per day was less than 40 visits.

That anyone could doubt that the shut down independent blogsite was not a sardonic lampoon is incredulous; considering there was a video of Bono in "drag" on the site and still can be seen at www.thedesertpun.com, or youtube.

I feel Bono's complaint over a secondary blog seen by very few people and claiming I was David Roth's "agent" is retaliation by Bono for my refusal to sell her the website: www.marybono.net. Bono's campaign office also threatened to use personal information handled by her congressional office to dissuade me from any opposition to her re-election. These efforts coupled with her contacting Google Inc., in an invasion of my privacy is very disturbing to me. I wonder if there could be possible criminal violations in Bono securing personal information with the cooperation of Google and their employees.

I have contacted Miriam Rivera, the Deputy General Counsel at Google Inc., sending her Bono's complaint, asking her to clarify whether Google authorized releasing personal information about me through the Google employee Bono identifies as "Jamie."

Please feel free to contact me should you need additional information.

Very truly yours

Congresswoman Mary Bono states she secured cooperation from a Google employee identified as "Jamie". This so-called employee is never identified but is used repeatedly in the complaint as if there was dialogue between Bono and "Jamie." Bono sought personal information about me and invaded my privacy. It is my understanding the law prevents government entities from requiring disclosures from a provider without proper procedure. I have contacted the Vice President & Deputy General Counsel at Google Inc., to see if they cooperated with Bono. The Department of Justice this year was rebuked by Google in attempts to invade user's privacy and it is astonishing Bono was able to accomplish this with the full cooperation of a Google employee. (#A)

During the past year I did establish commentaries and websites satirizing both Democrats and Republicans along the lines of such blogs as the www.whitehouse.org during the past year. They are obvious lampoons. (#B)

Bono believes her constituents would mistake the marginally visited sites on myspace (shutdown by Bono) and blogger (shut down on Nov 3) or a local blog called www.thedesertpun.com (which Bono wanted to shut down) as statements authorized by her influencing the election. It is absurd "her public" would believe these blogs are not a satarical site. A video youtube segment with Bono in "drag" appeared on the site regularly and can still be seen on www.thedesertpun.com or youtube. On the site were narratives with such blogs as Gov. Schwarzenegger looking "fat in a bikini" — Bono outfitted as a playboy bunny, items concerning Bono's relationships with Tom DeLay, Jack Abramoff, Connie Mack, Duke

November 9, 2006

Cunningham, etc., are seen in the blog. Would anyone think Bono would call herself the "Congressional #2 Hottie"? The average daily visit were under 40 hits and it is ludicrous to believe this any effect on the election besides a lampoon seen by a very very limited audience?

(#C)

As for David Roth, Bono's opposing Democratic challenger in the recent election, I was not acting as an agent for him or having a "relationship" with him regarding his campaign. I did contribute to Roth's campaign, met him briefly two times at a large fund-raiser, never met his campaign manager or staff, never did any volunteer work or attended any rallies or other events. Bono bases "my relationship" with Roth on my including Mr. Roth in a second copy of an email sent to the publisher and editor of the Desert Sun. If I was Mr. Roth's "agent" or had a "relationship" would I have included him in an email which was also sent to members of Bono's campaign, various media people, along with members of the local city council in Palm Springs along with both Republican and Democratic players here? The referenced email in the complaint from Mr. Roth to the Desert Sun was sent to me as an attachment. Bono fails to mention I have another blog: www.thedesertsun.com. This causes me to be on dozens of political email lists regarding that site. I received the Roth's original email as an attachment or it was forwarded on to me by some other constituent. I receive emails like this all the time. For example, I received a copy of an email Bono sent to a local conservative radio talk show host. This was an attachment and in this email she indicates how funny she thought it was the host called an area of her

Mexican-American constituency a "third world toilet." I obviously don't have a "relationship" with Ms. Bono or am not her "agent" but possession of this email would indicate I could have received this email as a blind second copy from her. Emails fly around the internet with endless numbers of people second copied similar to junk mail. (#D)

Bono also shared personal information regarding a matter handled by her congressional office with her campaign office. Her campaign office then used these matters as a possible threat to curtail my efforts against her re-election and, in other words, buy my vote. (#E)

Bono lost control of her website www.marybono.net and attempted to buy the site from me. I received an email from a "Daphne" wanting to buy the site immediately because she was going to give the "marybono" site to her girlfriend. It seems the girlfriend named "B.J" was having a baby and was going to name her "Mary." Why she would want a website called www.marybono.net is beyond comprehension? This was an obvious attempt by Bono to buy the site back after her office failed to do so and one of the major reasons for the complaint as retaliation when I wouldn't sell it. The site has never been activated. (#F)

I would certainly have appreciated my blogsites having more impact on the election. I thought there were more visits than there were. It seems I read the accumulative report incorrectly. Over 150,000 people voted in the election and the average daily visits to the "Mary Bono number 2 hottie" was less than 50. The sitemeter does not exclude my visits which were many. (#G)

November 9, 2006

I would hardly call myself a "party regular" or an "agent" or having a "relationship" with any Democrat. I am a gay man

My entire purpose in campaigning against Bono was based on my First Amendment rights as an independent agent and lampooning the hypocrisy of political candidates including Democrats and Republicans.

Bono has done everything possible to curtail my First Amendment rights in constructive retaliation with this complaint including gaining access to personal information with the cooperation of Google, Inc., regarding very insignificant satirical websites averaging 40 hits a day.

This was nothing but blatant harassment by Bono for: (1) my not selling Bono marybono.net; (2) my refusing to remove the satirical blogs; (3) threatening to use personal information handled by her constituent office shared with her campaign office to be used as pressure for curtailing my protests against her re-election; (4) refusing, as a gay man, to be lumped in with what was seen as endorsement of Bono by the totally double-faced Log Cabin run Human Rights Campaign.

Please contact me if you want additional information or have any questions.

Dear Ms. Rivera: re: Google's Involvement in Rep. Mary Bono's Complaint

Attached is a complaint filed on October 18th, 2006 with the Federal Election Commission by Congressional Rep. Mary Bono of Palm Springs, California.

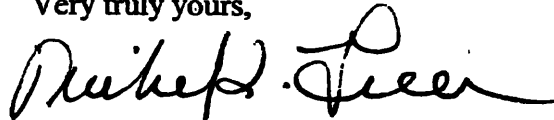

Is it correct Google, Inc., provided employee assistance to the Bono campaign in what would appear privacy issues and furnishing information as indicated in their complaint attachments?

Bono has identified this Google employee as "Jamie" which would indicate Google was hiding the identity of this worker. I would appreciate your assistance in this matter to clarify Google's involvement in this complaint filed by Mary Bono and if your employee "Jamie" was involved?

I wonder if there could be possible criminal violations in Bono securing personal information with the cooperation of Google and their employees.

Many thanks for your cooperation.

Very truly yours,

Happy New Year to all!! I realize it's been quite a while since I've last been in touch with you here, but I've obviously been pretty busy these last few months. For starters, I've:

1. Addressed the South Carolina Jefferson Jackson Day Dinner (Dick Harpootlian, if you're reading, I'd like to tell you that "You Da Man!")
2. Addressed the DLC
3. Addressed the Congressional Black Caucus (As I'll be reminding you throughout the campaign, I was the first Senator to call for Trent Lott to step down as Senate Majority Leader)
4. Won re-election to the Senate by a landslide, with 81% of the vote
5. And, of course, I became the second Democrat to (un)officially throw my hat into the ring for our party's nomination for President of the United States by starting an exploratory committee.

Not to brag or anything, but I'm mopping up the competition in fundraising right now, and I frankly don't see anyone surpassing us in the long run. But it's going to be a long, vigorous, and vital campaign, and I look forward to discussing with my fellow Democrats and Americans our vision for the future of the country. It will certainly be bright if I am elected!

I suppose that's all for now. I'll try to be a little bit more diligent about keeping in touch this year, but hopefully you'll understand if I'm not able to. Between stopping the Bush-Lott juggernaut's far-right agenda in the Senate and presenting the alternative Democratic agenda both in the Senate and in my campaign, (and not to mention dealing with petty little things like that ridiculous haircut story-not that I stayed up at night thinking about it or anything, but I have to say that it frustrates me a lot to see people trying to smear me for such superficial and petty reasons as how and by whom I have my hair cut. And then they throw in a little bit of class warfare-ism by implying that I'm out of touch because I spend $75 on my coif. But I haven't been able to get anything cheaper than that since I was at St. Paul's, frankly, and I'll be darned if my hair looks as anarchic as it did back then!!) I'll be plenty busy! I'll leave you with a picture of someone even more beautiful (and with even better hair!) than myself: my wife Teresa.

Woke up at 9:30 today. First thought: I just LOVE the state of Massachusetts!
Second thought: It's good when the Senate's not in session!

Looked in the mirror. Ran my fingers through the hair. I'm not only a good man: I'm pretty darned good-looking, too!

I'm so lucky to have my life, my wife, and not a lot of strife. (Don't worry, I'm not going to pull a Bulworth!) But enough about me. Let's get to the real focus of this blog: the people!! (I just looked in the mirror again. Still beautiful!)

Here's a good profile of me from the Boston Globe that talks about how I'm reaching out to the people in my home state. A couple of pet peeves. I get really angry whenever an article brings up that "richest man in the U.S. Senate" thing. I think it's not only an attempt by the media to reduce my populist appeal, but it's also a very negative personal attack that insinuates I married for the money. I suppose it's part of the price you pay for being a public servant, but that kind of thing just really seems out of line.

Second, as the article points out, I am a motorcycle aficionado and am known to ride Harleys now and then. (the new one is awesome! I picture myself as King of the Road when I'm out on it) I just don't like that Senator Campbell, my good friend and esteemed colleague--wait a minute, I'm not on the floor--actually, we're not really friends, and I still think he's a turncoat. Anyway, you hardly ever see a profile of Senator Campbell without a mention of his bolo ties and his Harleys, and he always gets this GREAT press for riding a bike. Fine by me, but when's the media going to show me some love for my love of Harleys? Nooooo, my "eccentricity" is always "John Kerry of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War." Don't get me wrong, I'm proud of my leadership with VVAW, but it's like I may as well just date my resume to 1973, because everything I've done since then is treated as an afterthought.

Okay, I'm done with that one. Well, I suppose that's all for my introduction to blogging. I hope you've enjoyed my ruminations, and stay tuned for my future adventures in the Blog world!

Hello and welcome! This is my first post to my first website. My name is George. You might know me as The President of the United States of America. In the coming days I will post what I did on that day. Shall we get started..

Today is June 10th. Nothing unusual happened until after breakfast. At around 9 AM, after a long day of work, I retired to my bedroom and went to watch the Texas Rangers game. You know what? The cable was out. I called for one of my White House labor-people and asked them why it was out. They told me that the cable company was experiencing "problems." "Problems?," I said. "Hell, I've got problems. big ones... not all of them are Laura, Jenna, and Barbara either, and I'm the Presidant for moo'in out loud!" My yelling alerted the Secret Service and I had to go through one of my little time out drills and pop one of those perty pills Doc' 'scribed me. I decided to just forget the game and call Alex Rodrguez for the play by play after I woke up.

About 4 in the afternoon one of my staff, uh.. Bill? or maybe Flint? whatever, his name ain't not important. Anyway this guy tells me I should get ready for my big trip tomorrow. "It's not that old frog Larry King is it?" Apparently, I'ma going to Europe tomorrow. I went to pack for the trip. When Dick saw that I was planning to wear my Texas Cowboy hat with my suit tomorrow, he told me something of which I hadded no idea of. "Europe doesn't like you, George," Cheney said to me. "You're going to have to wear your "president face" over there. "Aw hell, Dick, it hurts me trying to look smart. It's so fisically draining."

Better get some sleep for the trip tomorrow, I've got an awfull lot of smoozin' to do on them Euros. Oh tomorrow Tim McVeigh is executed. Man, that brings back memories. Back when I was the gov o ner of Texas I signed my share of execution orders. Yep, I distinctly remember my last of em before becoming President. Her name was Wilma Johnson People thought she was a sweet old innocent lady but I knew better. It was kinda emocinail to sign that order, knowing it would be my last as gov o ner. Tears fell from my eyes as I signed the old George W. on the line. Well, that will teach he to jaywalk. ... I hope Air Force One has the closed-cirqet broadcast from Terre Haute Oh boy, chow time. Till later.

This blog obviously is a satire on Representative Mary Bono. She represents the congressional district for Palm Springs and is a public figure. She believes that people who read this site actually believe its contents. It is difficult to believe her "official" web site would list her as "Mary Bono for Congress (the #2 hottie).

Mary Bono, using her pro-Bush Washington attorneys, has filed a complaint against this site.

She wants to shut it down because it is run by gays and lesbians.

Mary Bono voted against gay adoption and against gays in the military.

Mary Bono is the worst form of slimy hypocrite.

Especially when you consider she broke up Representative Connie Mack's family and left his young children without a fulltime father.

Mary Bono has anti-American values!

ALL THE NEWS, THE DESERT PUN

The Desert Pun

DEMOCRATS IT IS TIME TO GIVE UP

There is no way to defeat Bono or Garcia or whatever idiotic candidates the Republicans put up for election for congress or the assembly.

These women reflect the anti-intellectualism, self-satisfaction, questionable backgrounds and mediocrity of political leaders here. This includes elected officials in both parties. These types saturate this place from city government to state and national office.

As for the assembly and congress, the desert will remain a bastion of Republican values and there is no way of unseating the GOP office holders. Unless Bono or Garcia commits murder or something equally extreme they will hang onto their seats with little benefit to the desert.

And the voting block that put Bono and Garcia in office are the "old ones."

They vote their party line, they do not read papers --- beyond the local Republican rag --- magazines, or particularly follow the news on TV unless it is Fox Network. The "old ones" don't want information; they want to do what is their tradition to do, which is vote Republican.

This is true for many "old gays" down here. They are interested in the respectability of being Republicans, and the family tradition of it, and the financial policies and protection of it. Whether or not it's true or serving of their overall interests.

Even after the current batch of "old ones" dies off --- new "old one" will move into the valley. Because that is the sort of person attracted to retirement down here and they vote. They are rich or well off, not very bright, not intellectually curious but more interested in playing golf, attending mega churches and dining out on "early bird" specials.

These "old ones" vote and they dictate the political scene down here.

So don't waste your money donating to Democratic candidates for state or national office in the desert.

Give it to the Green Party.

Or use the money to take an RSVP or Atlantis Cruise.

Goodbye and goodluck!

75,000 absentee Votes not counted in Riverside County! Registrar favors Mary Bono!

by The Editorial Staff on 11.10.06 @ 08:35 PM PST [\[link\]](#) [\[No Comments\]](#)

"Our mission statement is to ensure the electoral process will be conducted professionally, consistently demonstrating neutrality and non-partisan decision-making, based upon a thorough knowledge of and compliance with all election laws by administering them timely, responsively and with integrity on behalf of those we serve."

Barbara Dunmore,
 Registrar of Voters
 Riverside County

Over 75,000 votes have yet to be counted in our County -- including, unbelievably, EVERY SINGLE ABSENTEE VOTE cast in the congressional race.

That's right, NOT ONE of the absentee votes cast in Riverside County has been counted yet by the Riverside County Registrar of Voters -- and according to their offices, as of today they are still "only in the process of verifying signatures, and have not yet begin to count the ballots."

Call Monday to Dunmore and protest the way this ridiculous woman treats voters!

Congressman Howard Berman
2221 Rayburn House Office Building,

Dear Congressman Berman:

re: U.S. Rep Mary Bono's possible ethical violations

I want to thank you for your staff's assistance regarding instructions in connection with my complaints regarding Mary Bono.

As I explained, Kerry Kircher, the Deputy General Counsel of the U.S. House of Representatives, advised me there could be an ethical violation regarding her office sharing personal information about me with her campaign office. I am now in touch with the Committee on Standards of official conduct after Mr. Kircher directed me to so.

As you know Ms. Bono basically denied even knowing Mark Foley and her illusory actions only demonstrate the fact she can't be trusted when it comes to demonstrating any type of ethical values in her office regarding personal constituents information.

Hopefully she will be defeated in November and we will no longer have the abhorrent Republicans running congress.

Very truly yours,
